4. NOTABLE FEATURES, HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE AND DESCRIPTION OPEN TO PUBLIC Yes  THIS very ancient and attractive structure is one of the finest and most historically important of the buildings in Easton. On its gable ends it is three bays wide and it is six bays long. There is a door at one end and two doors on one side. All of the windows are 15/15 sashes with old bubbly glass. The doors are vertical batten ones. The structure originally was very narrow with an A-roof, It now has a catslide roof resulting from an enlarging in 1797 in which the roof beams were extended on one side, raising that roof and making the church wider. — The interior of the church is worthy of note with its unpainted deeply aged panelling. All of the framing beams are exposed and the walls plastered between. There is horizontal sheathing up to the chair rail level. The room is divided in half by a moveable wall which slides up and down in sections.— This was to separate the male and female members of the congregation. The ceiling beams are beaded and all of the old benches are moveable. There is a very narrow second storey gallery in the building. This
5. PHYSICAL CONDITION OF STRUCTURE Endangered Interior Exterior  structure has been so beautifully preserved and its interior woodwork is in such excellent condition that it is truly worthy of mention.   On the grounds of the meeting house is a small steeply pitched a -roofed cottage, 3 bays wide and 11 deep which is probably c. 1800.
